

Russian Blast Will Speed U.S. Decision

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's explosion of a nuclear test device was expected today to hasten a decision by President Kennedy on resumption of U.S. nuclear weapons testing.

Well informed officials now consider it likely Kennedy will make a decision early next week and that it will be to start up U.S. testing again. The last U.S. test explosions were held in the fall of 1958.

It was also learned that the administration is considering some modification of the secrecy policy covering this country's nuclear weapons arsenal. The reason: to give the American people and the world a better idea of the amount of atomic force available to the United States for its own defense and the defense of its allies.

Kennedy said Thursday, after a meeting with Cabinet officials and congressional leaders, that this country's atomic weapons systems were "wholly adequate" to deal with the policy of "atomic blackmail" which he declared was now being practiced by Russia.

But some of the President's advisers feel that the public, here and abroad, should be given a better idea of the proportions of American strength and the military purposes for which it is designed. Among other objectives, they evidently would like to dramatize and make understandable what they now call Russia's "policy of overkill."

That term was used by Ambassador Arthur H. Dean in a statement at the White House Friday following a meeting with the President. At the meeting Dean reported on his fruitless negotiation with Russian representatives at Geneva on a nuclear weapons test ban treaty. Referring to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's statement about development of a 100-megaton nuclear bomb, Dean said "the Soviet policy is the policy of overkill."

The term comes from military sources and means the destruction of human life beyond the limits of military necessity.

The White House announced Friday the first Soviet nuclear explosion known to this country since Russia, the United States and Britain imposed moratoriums and began their test ban conference at Geneva almost three years ago.

"The device tested had a substantial yield in the intermediate range," the statement said. "It was detonated in the atmosphere."

In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said the explosion in the atmosphere rather than underground "increases by an amount as yet unknown the danger to health from radioactivity." The Soviet decision to resume testing was announced Wednesday night and since about that time

Migration of Squirrels at Jasper

JASPER, Ark. (AP) — A large migration of squirrels in the Jasper area was reported today by the Game and Fish Commission.

Game Warden Fred Bell of Jasper reported the migration he observed Thursday appeared about as large as a big migration in the same area in 1959. He said it appeared to cover four or five miles.

Bell said that he counted 7 squirrels crossing a road while he was waiting to catch some illegal hunters.

Squirrels often migrate short distances, a commission spokesman in Little Rock said, but every few years a mass migration occurs during which the animals will swim rivers and big lakes, cross highways and travel for many miles. In one such movement, he said, squirrels were seen swimming Lake Norfork.

Cause of the migrations isn't known, but it could be a search for food.

Bell said he arrested several illegal squirrel hunters and found the squirrels they had were mostly young ones.

Squirrel season doesn't start until Sept. 15 in the northwest area or Oct. 1 in the rest of the state.

Says Russia Shows Policy Is Terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Arthur H. Dean today charged Russia's plan to resume nuclear tests shows clearly the Soviet Union intends to "test its future policy on the terrorization of humanity."

Dean, after his second meeting of the morning with President Kennedy, read a statement saying:

"The Soviet policy is the policy of overkill (sic). 'But the Soviet government underestimates the people of the world if it thinks they will capitulate to a strategy of blackmail and terror.'"

Pond Fishing Is Best in This Section

Hempstead County can be justly proud of the contribution made towards better soil and water conservation by the many farm ponds constructed in the last five years.

A well managed pond is the best place to go fishing in Hempstead County. River fishing is seldom "right." A natural lake or unfertilized farm pond will yield about 35 pounds of fish per acre each year. A well managed farm pond will produce 150 pounds or more.

This means that the average fisherman in a managed pond catches three times as many fish per acre and has many more hours of pleasure.

Pond management is not difficult. The Hempstead County Soil and Water Conservation District offers assistance in all phases of pond management — the selection of a site, supervision of construction, ordering of fish from U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, weed control, fertilization and management of the fish population.

Here are a few important guides to successful pond management:

1. Eliminate the wild fish from the impounded area by using rotenone before stocking.
2. Use only hatchery fish when stocking.
3. Start fertilizing before the bluegills and rock bass are stocked and then maintain adequate fertilization from March to November.
4. Don't fish newly stocked fish ponds until the bass are well established. Bass are stocked in

Brazil Assembly Limits Power of Goulart

By EDWARD T. BUTLER

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Jono Goulart went ahead today with plans to take over as Brazil's presidency amid reports he has agreed to govern with limited powers.

The vice president, a leftist with strong labor support, was proclaimed chief of state by 50,000 cheering followers Friday night as his plane arrived from Uruguay at Porto Alegre, capital of his home state of Rio Grande do Sul, Goulart's political stronghold in the south.

Congressional leaders in the hinterland capital of Brasilia haggled over plans to install Goulart Monday as a figure head president under a proposed parliamentary system that would give power to a prime minister.

Goulart still faced stubborn opposition however, from the nation's three military chiefs who insist they will not accept the controversial leader under any conditions.

Heads of Brazil's army, navy and air force had ordered the armed forces to attack the pro-Goulart 3rd Army in Rio Grande do Sul, but there were no reports of significant military action.

Cunha Mello, first secretary of the Senate, said in Brasilia a caucus of congressional and party leaders had approved the decision for Goulart's inaugural at 1 p.m. Monday.

Officials said the plans were based on the assumption that by then Congress would approve a constitutional amendment setting up a parliamentary system in Brazil. Under Janio Quadros who resigned as president a week ago, Brazil's system of government was similar to the United States.

Senate President Moura Andrade told the Senate Friday night Goulart had agreed to the constitutional change to set up a parliamentary system, but there were hints Goulart's supporters in Congress might try to block it on grounds he was already president.

Goulart, who was on a trip to Red China and other Far Eastern points when Quadros resigned, hastened to Paris last Sunday to await developments and map plans for his return. He flew to Montevideo Thursday, then made the hop to Porto Alegre Friday night.

Limitation on Pickerlap Imports Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said today he looks for the Tariff Commission to recommend to the White House shortly that limitations be placed on imports of pickerlap cotton.

Mills has advanced executive action to restrict imports of pickerlap cotton and has said that if such action is not forthcoming he would insist on legislation to accomplish that purpose.

He has introduced such a bill, which is pending before the House Ways and Means Committee, of which he is chairman.

Southern cotton-state congressmen have complained that heavy imports of pickerlap—a raw cotton in bat form—is wrecking the cotton industry. Imports of raw cotton are restricted under law but pickerlap has been ruled outside the import quota on a technical finding that it is a processed form of cotton.

Southerners complain that in some cases U.S. cotton is sent out of the country under the export subsidy program, converted into pickerlap bales and then returned to the United States to compete, at a lower price, against other domestic cotton.

Chiang Kidnaper Out of Jail

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Young Marshal, Chang Isachiang, who kidnapped President Chiang Kai-shek in 1936 and held him prisoner for 12 days, has been freed from 24 years of relentless surveillance.

The Formosa garrison command today confirmed long-standing rumors the Young Marshal, now 62 and gray, had been given his freedom.

The former warlord, who in his heyday ruled Manchuria and north China, now lives at Peitou, a hot springs resort eight miles from Taipei.

Full Speed Was Just Too Much

MANDAL, Norway (AP) — Fifteen minutes after the new Norwegian motorship Beta set out on her maiden voyage Thursday, Skipper Ivar Jahnsen called for full speed to show a Danish collier how easily the 460-ton vessel handled.

Full speed and a sharp turn were too much for the Beta, though. In 30 seconds she heeled far over, throwing the 15 Norwegian and 12 Danes aboard into the sea and stopping the ship's engines.

Two German torpedo boats and other small boats cruising in the sunny fjord rescued the Beta's personnel. The ship, still listing sharply, was towed back to the shipyard.

Wants Clear Position by Fulbright

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William H. Avery, R-Kan., Thursday made public a letter to Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., asking that his position on the propriety of certain types of anti-Communism seminars be "clearly established."

In a statement he said reaction among members of Congress is still apparent to a recent memorandum submitted by Fulbright to Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara which suggested military officers stick to military subjects in their speeches and stay away from such delicate questions as foreign policy.

Avery said the memorandum led him to question Fulbright as to the intended effect of it on such anti-Communism seminars as that held recently at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., under auspices of the Command and General Staff College.

He asked Fulbright in a letter last week whether the "closure memorandum" submitted to McNamara was intended to prevent members of the armed forces from participating in such a seminar or similar meetings.

Fulbright did not answer his inquiry directly, Avery said, but sent him a statement on the memorandum that had been placed in the Congressional Record recently and a copy of a speech on the subject Fulbright made to the National War College a few days ago.

Because of newspaper reports that another seminar for Virginia, and Maryland National Guardsmen, scheduled for Fredericksburg, Va., had been cancelled, Avery said he "redirected the question to Fulbright" Thursday.

The Kansas congressman asked Fulbright specifically "whether or not this type of anti-Communist seminar was being excluded by the memorandum for members of the armed forces."

In another development in the controversy which arose after the Fulbright memorandum, McNamara has been summoned to a public hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee next Wednesday.

The committee said it wanted to question McNamara before deciding whether to take into charges that Pentagon policies have put a damper on military speech-making.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., who was critical of the Fulbright memorandum, has demanded an investigation of his assertions that military leaders have been kept from speaking out about dangers of communism.

Don't Why Says Young Slayer

MARION, Ark. (AP) — "I'm sorry I did it, but I don't know why I did it," 15-year-old Gurvis Basil (Buddy) Nichols told a jury hearing his first degree murder trial today.

Nichols said he never thinks of the fatal shooting of two younger boys until he is questioned about it.

Nichols told his story of the slayings in calm, concise answers to questions. He said he did not remember the actual shootings.

A story that he shot the boys because he wanted to die was made up, he said, when he prepared to report the shootings to police.

"I couldn't go up there with a blank expression on my face, I had to tell them something."

Nichols said he met the boys as he was preparing to go dove hunting. They accompanied him. The shootings occurred as they were returning to their homes.

The trial was expected to reach the jury later today.

Tears No Sign of Femininity Scientists Declare Strong Men Don't Cry Enough

By MARY ANITA LASETER

News item: Scientists say that men don't cry enough.

Could this be true? It certainly isn't incredible when a little thought is given to the fact that a man is expected to remain stoic and immovable, emotion-wise, whereas under the same or similar conditions a flood of tears from the eyes of a woman is nothing unusual.

Is that really fair? Are tears a sign of weakness or femininity? No indeed, say men of science, who stress it would be a good idea for men not to feel obligated to resist crying. The truth about tears was revealed in a recent article in the "Grit," a weekly paper published in Williamsport, Pa.

Many beneficial effects are obtained by crying, and we aren't including the reduction of the male to helplessness with the tears of wife or sweetheart. Every woman knows the wonderful relaxed feeling after "having a good cry." Aside from doing wonders for the nerves, tears protect the nasal passages from infection.

Ashley Montagu, a distinguished anthropologist, explains the importance of "tear protection" in this way. The mucus membrane of the nose dries in the process of breathing so that it no longer secretes mucus, which contains a bacteria-killing enzyme. But tears leak into the nose and moisten the membranes, thus creating a potent resistance to infection.

What about the "crocodile tears" shed by many? Is there any way to tell whether tears are sincere or merely "put on"? At this writing science hasn't conquered that hurdle yet, but it probably won't be long before tests can be made to determine whether tears are genuine or not.

Detectives are particularly anxious to find out if a suspect is telling the truth in expressing sorrow with tears. This much is known already. Tears shed under one circumstance differ from the composition of those shed under another. So the idea of examining the tears of persons in criminal cases makes sense.

The emotional aspect of tears is a fascinating study for a student of humanity. Of course, it is realized that there is a physical reason for tears at times, but from the psychological angle tears present a more complicated picture.

"Though some think that tears are just drops of salty water, they are, in fact, a complex chemical solution. Even more complex is the reason some people have for shedding them. 'Reasons' range from sorrow to pleasure to anger. But through it all one sure fact remains. And that is usually a woman. Not a man. And that's a crying shame." He doesn't know what he's missing.

Tragic Toll Was Families on Vacation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The flaming crash of a TWA Constellation near Chicago today took a tragic toll of vacationing families.

The passenger list included seven in one family, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Maloney of Covina Park, Calif., and five children, Michael, Maureen, Richard, Mary and an infant whose name was not on the manifest.

Edward N. Chamberlain of Palo Alto, Calif., a noted architect, his wife and four sons were among the victims. They had been on a European vacation and had visited recently at Kensington, Conn., with relatives.

Chamberlain was descended from Abiram Chamberlain, governor of Connecticut in the early part of the century. The children were Edward, 14, Richard, 9, Grant, 4, and James, 2.

The wife and four children of L. Neil Gilliam, a Forestry Department employee of Eureka, Calif., who had been visiting her parents in New Bedford, Mass., also were among the dead. Listed with Frances Gilliam were Benton, 14, Karen, 11, Tommy, 7, and Linda Jo, 4.

Sylvia Remnant, 32, who boarded the plane with three children, John, 10, Elmer, 3, and an infant girl, had purchased tickets in Liverpool, England.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Mahoney and a daughter, of Santa Rosa, Calif., also were among those killed.

In Binghamton, N.Y., 7-year-old Sharlene Woods went with her grandmother, Estella Woods, 67.

Japs Protest Test Resumption

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government said today it would protest to Moscow that Soviet resumption of nuclear testing will shower the Japanese people with the fallout from the "ashes of death."

The opposition Socialist party also addressed a protest to Premier Khrushchev through the Russian Embassy here. It warned him that the Soviet Union will lose its "glorious prestige" if he goes through with the tests.

Another Try to Make U.S. Chicken Out

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who's chicken?

To find out is the most obvious reason behind Premier Khrushchev's decision to resume nuclear tests and his talk of a superbomb. Three times in a few months he has tried to make the Allies chicken out in their determination to defend Berlin.

Twice he was the one who laid the egg. But this third try—the nuclear tests and the threat of the monster bomb—is the truly scary one. It could work.

First, to test their mood, he threatened, as he had before, to get the Allies out of Berlin. But since he had done nothing before but talk, the Allies had nothing to lose by standing pat...until he did more than talk. And they did.

Next, he shocked them by scaling off East Berlin. This gave him a fiercer look than before, more determined. This seemed to scatter the Allies' wits. It took them a while to let him know they were still solid. But they did nothing else.

Then this week came the announcement on the resumption of the tests and the boasts about the superbomb. Actually, this was not the first time he had talked of having a monster.

The first time, in 1957, he claimed to have a weapon so huge it would make the one he has in mind now look as destructive as an aspirin tablet. He said that one was too big to test at all. It's doubtful he'll test this one, either.

Rep. Chet Holifield, California Democrat and an extremely well-informed man on nuclear weapons since he's chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, said Khrushchev was talking nonsense.

But the much smaller bomb he's talking about developing now—a 100 megatonner, equivalent to 100 million tons of TNT in destructiveness—is perhaps five times bigger than anything the United States possesses.

Holifield doubts Khrushchev will try to develop this one, either, or test it, because he says five bombs of 20-megaton power would do more damage.

But it's not so much the size of the bomb which might frighten American allies as the ruthless image of himself Khrushchev is now creating.

He showed complete contempt for world opinion in deciding to go ahead with nuclear tests which both the United States and Russia voluntarily stopped three years ago.

It's natural for them to assume—when they think of standing by the United States in refusing to let the Russians take over Berlin—that if Khrushchev is willing to go this far, he may go to lengths unrestrained of now, including war.

This is the biggest power play Khrushchev has tried since he succeeded Stalin.

Negro Musician Won't Play L. R.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Duke Ellington's orchestra won't play here next Tuesday night as scheduled because of Robinson Auditorium's segregated seating policy.

Ellington canceled the concert Thursday after receiving a telegram from L. C. Bates, field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Bates told Ellington that Negroes here did not think Ellington would knowingly "give comfort and aid to the racists of this city to relegate the Negro to a second-class citizenship status."

Probers Seek Reason for Plane Crash

CHICAGO (AP) — Teams of investigators sought today to unravel the mystery surrounding the crash of a commercial airliner that carried 78 persons to a fiery death.

All aboard, 73 passengers and 5 crewmen, perished early Friday as the Trans World Airlines Constellation slammed into a cornfield about 10 miles west of Chicago only minutes after taking off from Midway Airport.

It was the nation's third worst U.S. commercial plane accident and the worst involving a single commercial plane.

Deepening the horror of the tragedy was the accent of youth among the victims—20 children—and the wiping out of one family of seven and two others of six and five each. It was an all-tourist class flight.

Members of a full scale investigation headed by the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Aviation Agency filtered through widely scattered debris, witness accounts, operations reports and detailed analysis of the crash scene seeking clues to the disaster.

Investigators were faced with a number of mysterious aspects surrounding the giant aircraft's brief flight from Chicago.

A seemingly normal takeoff with a 3,000 foot ceiling and visibility at 3 miles.

A routine radio exchange between the pilot and the control tower at O'Hare with no indication that anything was wrong.

A piece of tail section which plunged to earth some 300 feet from the rest of the wreckage and conflicting reports from witnesses of an explosion before or after the crash.

On its normal course the plane would have been traveling southwesterly but fell to earth heading due north indicating the pilot may have been attempting to return to the airport.

After preliminary investigation

Foreign Aid Bill Slashed $896 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's foreign aid program was slashed another $896 million today by the House Appropriations Committee.

To finance for the present year the program of helping friendly nations brace themselves against the tide of communism, the committee recommended $3,357,500,000 in new funds.

That is $1,418,000,000 less than Kennedy originally asked. A separate enabling act sent to the President Thursday held the ceiling on new money to $4,253,500,000, or $500 million less than the White House wanted.

Today's financing bill cut every category of the aid program below the amounts Congress had approved. It is subject to House action starting next Tuesday, but in past years the House has adhered closely to its committee's recommendations.

Biggest cuts by the committee were $400 million in direct military assistance, $175 million in development loans, $125 million in the flexible contingency fund, and $121 million in development grants.

In explanation of a 50 per cent cut in Peace Corps funds, the committee said testimony indicated that $40 million "was far more than would be needed" during the present year.

In its original version of the authorization bill, the Senate backed the administration plan for borrowing from the Treasury for the development loans without going back to Congress each year for cash. But the House was adamant in conference and the proposal was knocked out.

On the basis of past House action, leaders see little prospect for major changes in the chamber itself from the Appropriations Committee allotments.

Christ made the laboring man a great promise. The proclaiming of Labor Day as a national holiday might not be a coincidence after all. In St. Matthew, the Lord promised rest to all those who labor and are heavy laden. Thus the National Holiday was set aside in respect to all those who work together to make our nation strong and free. God is on the side of the working man, but He has no use for the nonproducers — the drones — the sluggards — the usurpers. In Corinthians, He makes it very plain that every man shall receive his own reward, according to his own labor. Then, let us not gloat over past accomplishments. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel for greater achievements. As we honor our working women and men, let us reflect on all the good fortunes of every American laborer. And may we reverently think on God as we celebrate, as we pay our respects, for we know, a man's work is born with him.

CAMPING OUT
Some 30 million campers are filling state and national parks and forests in what has become a revolution in outdoor living.

The reason is modern camping equipment. New tent-trailers are lightweight and pull easily behind the car. They offer dry, comfortable bug-free accommodations. Aluminum and plastic units come completely equipped with gas stoves, lights and refrigerators.

Even ordinary tents have been redesigned to offer quality outdoor living - dry, portable and lightweight - at a fraction of the usual vacation cost.

For the angler, this has opened up a whole new vista of sports.

With his accommodations rolling right with him, he can move around.

All this, after the initial cost of the camping gear, is merely for the price of groceries and gas. If outright purchase of the outfit is a little steep, most cities have rental agencies.

Camp grounds are listed. Road maps have camp grounds marked. Camping fishermen find it pays to write ahead for information.

ALUMINUM IS SAFE

By WM. TAYLOR MCKEOWN
News-Paper Enterprise Ass'n.

The light weight of boating metals has received endorsements by the heavyweights of the boat building industry.

Aluminum boats are building a new craft in the 27 foot cabin cruiser that will sleep four and carry a number more for day boating. It will plane along at 30 miles an hour with its twin 35 horsepower engines, and is being built in Holland, Mich.

The Aluminum airplane helped make possible the winning of World War II, but afterward aircraft aluminum was sold as surplus.

Small-time fast-back boat builders bought it and started making aluminum runabouts. America was pleasure-boat hungry and bought a large number of these light little craft - only to have many come apart or develop holes.

Aluminum alloys that are ideal for aircraft may practically dissolve after a short soaking in salt water. Other forms of the metal that have been designed for marine use, however, can stand direct exposure to water and weather and get nothing more than a superficial rough-tarnishing.

Improper use of aluminum gave the material a temporarily bad name among boatmen until the big producers started educating marine builders and users.

Boats properly made of it have been constantly afloat for more than 40 years. Many steamship lines employ it for lightweight superstructure.

Chris-Craft's Rimmer Division starts out with anti-corrosive high tensile alloy for the new boat and welds prefabricated sections into a rigid hull over longitudinal framing. Sides are stretch-formed. The cabin top is fiberglass.

To provide minimum maintenance, the metal is then given a primer etching coat, next a vinyl spray layer of red lead oxide, a metallic vinyl covering pigmented with aluminum particles and a fourth coat, this time of copper anti-fouling vinyl. Above the water line marine enamel is used.

Electrolysis, which can cause corrosion of metal hulls, is reported to be controlled as well by an automatic transistorized impressed current unit. A plastic coating to help prevent condensation and provide sound-proofing is applied inside the hull. Conventional varnished mahogany finishes the cabin interior.

Why an aluminum boat instead of more usual materials?

Chris-Craft feels it can make this new cruiser stronger and lighter at the same time, which can mean more seaworthy speed and less maintenance.

Happy Holzapfel couldn't remember the start of it, but it seemed that someone at the garage had said something in just one day, and that night the whole thing began.

Dreams of catastrophe, bicycles. They were everywhere clogging the curbs, racked against buildings, filling the streets.

He saw Luke Chutney and Joe Glubman racing on highwheels, and spinning along beside them, Tom McRae and his whole family on one enormous contraption, and behind the McRaes came Bill Stalcup on a bicycle, hugging a three foot loaf of unwrapped bread under one arm.

At first, the whole thing had been funny. He rose in the morning and found sanity all around him, moving cars, overpacked cars at the meters, cars that wouldn't start, cars gulping gasoline as they properly should, cars broken down and needing tools, cars a year or so old that badly needed replacement cars, cars.

Everything was normal. Get a grip, Holzapfel. Listen to all the profitable sounds around you. Watch good old Sludge perform. See the procession to the parts counter.

Suddenly his eyes started from his head. He paled and clutched his chair. Out of the shop and down the ramp came Sludge Goodwin on a bicycle.

The men at the parts counter shouted gaily at him. The words were lost but Holzapfel could tell that his employees approved or else they would not be smiling and laughing so.

Sludge passed the entrance area. He looked up and gave Holzapfel a friendly salute. The treacherous dog! But no, it couldn't be. Holzapfel closed his eyes and turned his chair slowly to face the street. Somewhere between the doorway and the curb, Sludge would disappear. That's all. The whole thing just didn't exist.

Holzapfel opened his eyes. Sludge was there, turning out into the street on his bicycle. People were looking at him, smiling, approving.

"I've been working too hard," Holzapfel muttered. "That, and those miserable dreams." He closed his eyes and counted to ten. Then he counted to 30 slowly. To be quite sure that Sludge would be gone when he looked again.

Sure enough, Sludge was gone. Holzapfel reached toward the intercom. Then he pulled his hand back quickly. Once more he tried and this time he made it, punch-

Mickey joined them as soon as the hot water was exhausted. As soon as his mouth was full, he said, "Hey, Pop, I just thought of something."

Here comes the bite, Stalcup thought.

"Turk says his old man is going to need a couple of men at one of his ranches before long. Maybe you could sell him a couple of your Indians."

"I'll call Huska about that right away. Thanks Mickey," Stalcup said mildly. "No arguments, just a little talk."

"I was thinking the same thing. You remember Slopzy Martin? He worked for the Highway Department this spring."

"Well, he did. His mother got sick or something, so he had to go back to Denver. He was coming back but he couldn't. He left his car at Woodruff's garage, and now he's got to see it. He only wants $550 cash, and that's stealing it. You ought to see how -"

"No," Mickey.

"It's got four pots, milled heads a racing cam, chromed headbolts and -" at the scene shortly after the crash, N. E. Halaby, FAA administrator, and Melvin Gough, CAB safety director, reported:

"No, Mickey."

The finding of the tail section so far from the rest of the wreckage was "very significant." They did not elaborate.

Gough said there was nothing to indicate that the aircraft exploded in the air but that there was evidence of a "heavily disintegrated structure."

Asked if sabotage was being considered, Gough replied, "We can't afford to rule out anything." He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation was working on the case, as a normal procedure.

Gough said the craft hit the ground at a steep angle, around 20 degrees, and hit very hard.

Experts began collecting every bit and piece of wreckage for re-assembling and the investigators emphasized it would take months to determine the cause of the accident.

Meanwhile, at the Cook County Morgue, medical experts labored through the grim task of trying to identify remains of the victims. About 60 per cent of the bodies were reported tentatively identified but only four positively. It is expected to be several days before the task is completed.

The ill-fated pre-holiday flight of the four-engine Constellation originated in Boston and made stops in New York City and Pittsburgh before arriving in Chicago. It was bound for Los Angeles, with a scheduled stop at Las Vegas, Nev.

Press Attacked by the House

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - The Arkansas House of Representatives today:

Rep. Clarke Kinney of St. Francis County and Rep. Mattie Hackett of Lafayette County criticized an Arkansas Gazette story which said the House had yielded to administration pressure in passing some appropriation bills Thursday.

But Rep. Paul Van Dalsem of Perry County, identifying himself as a former weekly newspaper publisher, came to the defense of the press.

Van Dalsem said the press had a job to do and a legislator should learn how to take criticism. He was supported by Rep. Alvis Stokes of Pike County and Rep. J. H. Autry of Mississippi County.

Later Gov. Orval E. Faubus in a statement criticized the Gazette story.

His Mission Is Teaching the Eskimo

By BRUCE LEVETT

URANIUM CITY, Saskatchewan (AP)—"Pray me, Father, for I have performed an evil action."

The Eskimo knelt in confession and, in his own tongue, began the words first set down by the Rev. Jean L'Helgouach.

Father L'Helgouach is an Oblate missionary who has spent three years translating the Roman Catholic Sunday Mass and other prayers and devotions into Eskimo. He used the opening words from the sacrament of confession as an example of the difficulty he faced.

"The English words are 'Bless me, Father, for I have sinned,' but the Eskimo has no word for sin and no word for sin. We used pray for sin and had to combine the Eskimo words for sin and action to denote sin."

The result was 406 pages of hymns and prayers entitled "Anaditika," which translates literally as "my means of praying."

It is used throughout the western Arctic and at many points in the East.

The book was illustrated by the Rev. Jean Colas, another missionary, who framed each picture.

Rev. Jean Colas, another missionary, who framed each picture with the same type crosses and swirls Eskimos use to decorate the hems of their garments.

A third priest, the Rev. Maurice Metayer, collaborated on the editorial work.

Decision Is Blow to Disarms Talk

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union's decision to resume testing of nuclear weapons has dealt a crippling blow to hopes in the United Nations for East-West progress on disarmament.

But it has given the United States a golden opportunity to win great support among the Asian-African nations—the so-called neutralist group—provided the Americans play it cool. And President Kennedy is giving every indication of doing just that.

That is the consensus among many veteran observers here assessing the impact of the Soviet announcement.

The Asian-African diplomats in general shared the shock and dismay of other diplomats outside the Soviet bloc at the Soviet decision. They have been in the forefront of the long-standing demands for an end to nuclear weapon tests, as well as over-all progress in disarmament. They had hoped along with the others that a test ban treaty would give the world a big push toward a disarmament agreement.

The United States and Britain have already proposed that the U.N. General Assembly opening Sept. 19 take up the urgent need for a treaty to ban nuclear weapon tests under effective international control.

Last year the assembly approved without a dissent a resolution calling for a test ban treaty and continued suspension of tests. The United States abstained because the resolution did not spell out the significance of effective controls.

The United States now will undoubtedly try to get the assembly to adopt the strongest kind of resolution—one that would criticize the Soviet Union harshly for resuming tests. If the United States can persuade a big number of the Asian-African members to support such a resolution, it would hand the Soviet Union a thumping propaganda blow.

President Kennedy's statement that the United States has sufficient nuclear weapons in its arsenal for defense of the Free World was interpreted here as showing determination not to be stampeded into following the Soviets in resuming tests.

Kennedy's carefully worded message to the Belgrade conference of nonaligned nations was also drawing praise among the neutrals.

3rd Session Set for Sept. 18

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Cleveland County Rep. Raymond Vays said today Gov. Orval E. Faubus has tentatively agreed to set a special legislative session on congressional redistricting for Sept. 18.

Mays said he met with a group of Arkansas county residents in Little Rock Thursday night and they agreed to his compromise redistricting plan, which would put Arkansas County into the new north central 2nd District.

Arkansas, Jefferson and Lincoln counties were unhappy with the 1961 redistricting act because it put them in the northeastern 1st District.

The compromise will move Jefferson and Lincoln into the southern 4th District.

Mays said the Arkansas County group wanted in the 4th District but agreed to go into the 2nd if this was impossible.

The 1961 act has been referred to a popular vote and this would force at large races in 1962 if nothing is done.

and time finds himself far from the people he knows best and loves.

"I am still hoping to go back, but as the years go by the chances are less and less," he says.

"They do not usually send an old man up there."

Skies Clear of Radio Fallout Now

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—As the Soviet Union stands poised to resume nuclear testing, the skies are largely clear of radioactive fallout.

But the largest proportion of the fallout's most feared component, radioactive strontium, rests on the earth, still posing a potential hazard to health.

Atomic authorities have the strontium under constant surveillance and report that, so far, there is no evidence that humans have absorbed dangerous quantities.

Here's the present radioactive fallout situation, based on estimates given a reporter by Atomic Energy Commission experts:

Of the 10,000 pounds of radioactive debris loosed in the atmosphere between 1945 and late 1958 more than 95 per cent has by now either been deposited on the earth or decayed while still aloft or on the ground.

Only a relatively small proportion of the material still on the ground is radioactive.

The 10,000 pounds included debris from the two atomic bombs the United States dropped on Japan in 1945 and material loosed in nuclear tests by the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

Experts figure that bombs having explosive power equivalent to about 170 million tons of TNT had been exploded by the end of 1958. At that time the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain announced they were suspending the tests while efforts were made to work out a test ban agreement.

France conducted nuclear tests in the Sahara Desert last year, but the AEC estimates that they contributed only about 0.1 or 0.2 per cent of the total fallout of long-lived fission products.

Radioactive strontium has been termed the worst potential hazard because if enough of it gets into the human body, it could cause bone cancer or leukemia.

Van Dalsem Wants No Institution

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Perry County Rep. Paul Van Dalsem declared today he doesn't want a state institution in his county because he feels it would reduce his effectiveness as a legislator.

"We don't have one of those things now and I'm the most independent fellow that's up here because of it," Van Dalsem said.

"If we had one, you'd bargain with me and beat me down and I couldn't operate effectively."

The bit of horseplay resulted from a facetious attempt by Pulaski County Rep. J. H. Cottrell Jr. to amend a Children's Colony bill to stipulate that a Negro colony would be located in Perry County.

Van Dalsem said earlier he favored a separate colony for Negroes rather than combining those facilities with the existing colony. Cottrell was trying to amend a bill to set up a Negro colony.

"We don't have any institutions, any industry or any labor unions," Van Dalsem said, laughing. "We've got very few people to vote and I like it that way."

Titan Construction

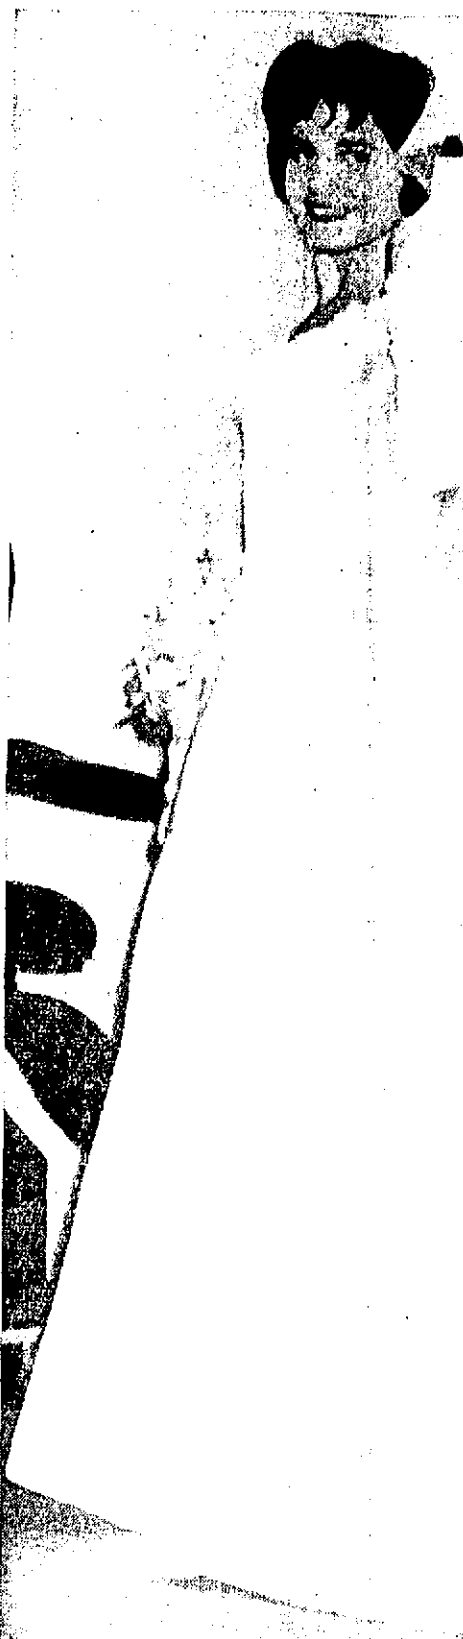

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Army Engineers say Phase I construction work on the first three Titan II intercontinental ballistic missile sites in Central Arkansas will be completed today. Mrs. William Timothy Walter

On Monday evening, Aug. 28 at the appointed hour of eight o'clock in the First Methodist Church Miss Judy Kaye Wright became the bride of William Timothy Walter. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Wright and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Walter of Abilene, Texas.

The Rev. Edmond Pendleton, pastor of First Christian Church of North Little Rock, heard their vows. Luther Holloman, organist, played selections of nuptial music as the candles were lighted by Miss Kaye Walter, sister of the groom, and Larry Don Wright, brother of the bride. Mr. Holloman, then accompanied vocal soloist David Pearson as he sang "If I Could Tell You," "With This Ring," and "L'Amour, Toujours, L'Amour."

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march the bride entered on the arm of her father. She was gown in an original white de lusted satin gown. The fitted bodice with its long tapered sleeves had a circle neckline etched in hand-run Alencon lace. A lace motif was featured on the flat front panel of the skirt. From a double puff back bustle the skirt swept into a court train. Her tiered double veil with separate circle silk illusion floated from a halo of hand-made satin roses, each with a seed pearl tip. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid.

Miss Carolyn Yarbrough was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Steve Walter of Abilene, sister of the groom, Miss Sheron Cooper of San Antonio, Miss Lynn Rogers of Yazoo City, Miss, and Miss Sharon Foster. They were identically gowned in crayon green satin featuring scooped necklines, elbow sleeves, and reversible cummerbunds. Short mits and nose-tip veils that flowed from deep green satin bows completed their attire. Each carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Little Miss Carol Frazier was the flower girl. She wore a short frock of pale green silk organza highlighted by a large sash, matching hat and mits. She scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Master William Randle Wright.

Also assisting in serving were Misses Caryl Joy Case, Sue Ann Smith, Carol Coop, Sherie Hankins, Suzanne Schumerville, Julia Peck, Nancy Reese, Betty Bryant, Denny Heffner, Judy Rollins, Mary Lou Park and Mrs. Jerry Garrett.

Out of town guests at the wedding and reception included Mr. and Mrs. Tim Spurrier and Mr. and Mrs. Mac Manley, Julia Ann Robert, of Abilene, Tex., Mrs. Mary Cahn and Miss Pam Fain, both of Shreveport and Mr. and Mrs. William Peck of Texarkana.

For travel the bride donned a magenta suit with black accessories and pinned the orchid from her bouquet at her shoulder. After a wedding trip to northern Arkansas, the newlyweds will be at home at 3011 Adrian Drive, Fort Worth, Texas, where both will be students this fall at Texas Christian University.

to the airport Thursday night. "That plane's going to crash," said Sharlene.

It didn't, but at Pittsburgh Mrs. Woods transferred to the TWA plane which did crash. Mrs. Woods, who had spent the summer visiting relatives in Birmingham, was en route to see a daughter, Gertrude Pritchard of Bell Gardens, Calif.

Also aboard were four Suncoast, N.H., girls happily bound for Los Angeles to find new jobs. The girls, Carole Chase, Linda Annis, Nancy Bergstrom and Linda Pease, all 20 years old, intended to stay with friends in Los Angeles.

Boarding at New York were Sylvia Henman 32, John Remann 10, Elmer Remann 3 and a female Remann child unnamed, all of England.

Eleven persons boarded the plane at Pittsburgh.

One was identified as John M. Macosko, 57, of Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Skurcinski were returning to their home in Inglewood, Calif., after a two-week visit with Skurcinski's mother at Pittsburgh.

'New Breed' Tells Story of a Thief

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Radio-TV Writer

HOOLYWOOD (AP)—One of the episodes of "The New Breed," a new ABC action series, will involve a sneak thief who steals a woman's purse at an amusement park.

A gimmick of the show is using Los Angeles area backgrounds for stories about the work of a special police detail. So the producer, Quinn Martin, asked permission to use a seaside amusement park for location shooting.

The park management was overjoyed—until it heard the sneak thief plot. Then the answer was a firm "no."

"We've spent a million dollars publicizing this place," Martin was told, "and we certainly don't want to leave the impression that there are sneak thieves operating here."

The scenes were made in another amusement park, well outside the Los Angeles area.

That represents but one of the problems of making a television program with identifiable backgrounds and the flavor of a recognizable city.

Another is the danger of law suits. If, for instance, a program located a fictitious drug store illegally dispensing narcotics at a point where a real drug store operated legitimately, the real-life store owner would run, not walk, to his lawyer's office.

Many of the semi-documentary shows use the names of real streets, and give addresses that are really vacant lots. The old "Dragnet" series, which also used Los Angeles for background, had a great trick of switching streets around: main east and west boulevards, like Sunset, Wilshire and Santa Monica carried north and south addresses. When it was necessary to name an intersection, two real place names were used, but always of streets that never met except in infinity, like "the corner of Sunset and Santa Monica."

Another new series, NBC's "77th Precinct," is deliberately given the flavor of New York City, but the city is never identified and all the streets are fictitious. The precinct itself is a composite: a little bit of the Bronx, a little of Central Park, a little of Fifth Avenue and a bit of Broadway—a handy device which will help give flexibility and variety to the plots. Of course, there really is an 87th Precinct in New York—but it is in Brooklyn.

Can Contribute to Pension Fund

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The attorney general's office said today that members of the Texas bank department may voluntarily contribute to their relief and pension fund in an effort to stabilize it.

The opinion went to attorney John W. Gooden as a representative of a committee from the fire department.

Gooden's letter said the relief and pension fund "is in a precarious condition" because of a number of men who are still employed

Those Men!

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

People are apt to think of this as a woman's column because it is written by a woman; but many men read it. Recently, one who signed himself J. L. confessed to having kissed, hugged and lunched the office sweetheart then abruptly calling a hal once he realized how deeply this philandering hurt his wife. Now, she is the only girl in his life and theirs the happiest of marriages. That he owned up went over big with wives. Here's a sample of the kind of letter it evoked:

Dear Helen: I think you're wonderful! The advice you give shows good judgment. I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. J. L. He must be a real guy to tell on himself. If husbands would only turn on the charm like they did in courting days there would be fewer divorces. J. L. was lucky to come to his senses before that office vamp really snared him—many a serious affair has started over an innocent cup of coffee and a hamburger.

I've worked years but have yet to feel the need of a male companion to sweeten my coffee. My husband and I spend our spare time together and, though we both have countless friends, though we both are happy, I hope life would be happier if other couples did likewise. Cheers for Mr. J. L. I hope other husbands take notice. —Mrs. D. A. Campbell, Calif.

Dear Mrs. A.: You're right. Marriage is sharing and life without someone to share it isn't worth living. I agree that J. L. had courage; but, in my opinion, his wife proved the finer of the two because she had the bigness of heart to forgive and—w hope, forget.

A husband who signed himself "Teddy" drew fire for presenting the other side of the coin. He owned up to a series of extramarital affairs yet flew into a rage when, having decided to settle down, his wife scored by admitting her love for him was dead, so dead that her heart now belonged to another man.

I advised him to dry his crocodile tears and accept my Oscar for being the selfish heel of the year.

How the women sided with me! Listen to this:

"I wonder why husbands like Teddy don't just kill their wives outright and not by long drawn out torturous deceit and infidelity."

Why? Because they're cowards. How do I know? I've been married to a philandering Teddy for 3 years of heartache. I almost turned to other men in retaliation, but I'm thankful I didn't. At least my children had one moral and decent parent who could set them an example of clean living.

My Teddy flitted from one romance to another, laughing at my tears and calling me "cry baby" when my heart was breaking.

Occasionally he would repent. For a few short months I would walk on air then find some note in his coat pocket addressed to "Dear Sugar Daddy." I told my troubles to no one, not even the children. Work was my salvation. I took in sewing, studied designing and became a first rate dressmaker. The money I earned put the children through school.

Eventually, I discovered to my joy, that I was completely indifferent to Ted's comings and goings. If he was late for a meal I let him fix a snack for himself. He began to stay out later and later. Only when I went back to my own bed—the one I'd slept in when the children were babies, did he take notice.

His "adventures" were piling, or so he said. I simply smiled and buried my nose deeper in a good book. No more tears for me! That really got him.

Why the change? Then, I let him have the cold, hard truth, without rancor, saying "I given him the best years of my life, reared a family of which we could be proud and, in an effort to heal a broken heart, built a life of my own, in which he no longer had any place."

He reformed over night, but it was too late. Now, we're going the last of the way together, yet so very, very, far apart.

I'm not blameless, some would probably call me a miserable failure as a wife, yet I've done the best I know how. Perhaps we women expect too much of our men. —Katy, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Is Katy right? Do we expect too much of our men?

Pond Fishing

April or May. They spawn the following April. Give the young fingerling bass a chance to grow before fishing for the big bass. This means waiting until about July 4 or about 15 months after the bass were stocked.

5. Balance your fishing by taking about five pounds of broom for each pound of bass. What about pond weeds and their control? Weeds are seldom a problem when the pond is correctly constructed and adequately fertilized. Otherwise, be prepared to live with certain weeds that sooner or later appear.

Ponds, as part of the farm soil and water conservation program, contribute to good land use. Livestock water, irrigation, fishing, boating and recreation are a few of the benefits. Soil and water conservation efforts on farms have had a marked effect in making Arkansas streams clearer.

Fishing in our creeks and rivers is better because of farm ponds. Many large fish are washed into streams each year from ponds.

Farm ponds make life in Arkansas more pleasant and profitable. They help us to do a better job of soil and water conservation too.

Would Give Up Singing to Aid Race

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOOLYWOOD (AP)—"I'd gladly give up whatever success I have to be part of the human scheme."

That's Harry Belafonte, the Negro folk singer, telling what the Negro in America wants.

"Individual human rights—the God-given dignity of man. That's all we're fighting for."

He says success is meaningless without those rights. If he were to give up success, the sacrifice would be considerable.

His recent Greek theater session here was a record breaker. The announcement of his name brought a one-day advance order of $250,000.

Belafonte says he wants to capitalize on his appeal by making a movie wherein he would travel the world and film natives singing folk music on the spot.

"It could be something on the order of 'Around the World in 80 Days.' At least I would want its primary message to be entertaining like that. But I think it would help to better understand other peoples."

Belafonte is on the governing board of President Kennedy's Peace Corps, the only showbusiness personality so named.

"I think the Peace Corps may be the answer. We tried bombs and guns—and failed. Let's try it with people."

Belafonte lands the State Department's cultural tours, especially in Africa.

"Of course, it's easy for a Belafonte or a Louis Armstrong to get rapport with the African people. I'd like now to have the Africans meet a Fred Astaire or a Gene Kelly. I think it would help for them to meet some of our great white artists."
